WELCOME

Safaraz Ali (Saf)

Founder & Chair of
The Asian Apprenticeship
Awards

 @SafarazAli

 /Safaraz

The Awards give a platform to talented apprentices from British Asian backgrounds and provide excellent role models for others, often from similar backgrounds to show that they, too, could get ahead through an apprenticeship.

This is our fourth awards ceremony and we continue to raise awareness, celebrate success and inspire others. Despite the positive difference we have made collectively, I feel like we've barely even begun to scratch the surface.

We need all of us to keep on scratching that surface until we break through, and can attract apprentices from all backgrounds and from all sections of the community. So while we're working towards a longer-term cultural change, in the short-term let's use the tools we have at our disposal, grow the positive action and build on the many examples of good practice that already exist, so that we can build a more balanced workforce for the future.

The awards would not be possible without the vision and support of many people including our judges and ambassadors, who have given their time and effort for the cause, as well our sponsors and partners who have backed us with this initiative. We all need to thank the excellent apprentices that have taken part and the businesses and organisations that employ and support them.

Sincere and hearty congratulations to all the finalists and winners tonight, enjoy your special evening.

Thank You

FOREWORD

Olga Bottomley

Chair of the Judging Panel
& Head Judge of
The Asian Apprenticeship
Awards

This year has seen a major rise with the quality of our applicants that have been entered into the Asian Apprenticeship Awards, the increase of applications has been incredible as well as the calibre of the apprentices. There is a clear increase with the number of applicants that were undertaking higher degree apprenticeships and the increased numbers of training providers and employers applying has most certainly risen.

The diverse judging panel that was made up from industry specialists came from a range of backgrounds working within the skills and employment arena. The panel had to work really hard during the judging day, and there was much debate and discussion to choose the winners across every one of the judging categories as a result of the standard of the entries being so high.

One key area that stood out for me during the judging process was the impact our female apprentices are making working within the STEM and Construction sectors. Developing and influencing skills, knowledge and behaviours that were really enhancing benefits within the organisation and within themselves.

Diversity enhances any business with the enrichment of sharing and understanding of different cultures, knowledge and experience.

For me, it is vital that every organisation has a workplace that represent our communities, promotes a greater understanding of respect, tolerance and encourages working together and reducing discrimination. Diversity in the workplace develops new initiatives and new ways of working to meet customer and organisational expectations.

Positive diversity in the workplace encourages positive diversity in our everyday lives.

These awards are so important as they continue to promote BAME apprenticeships within our employers, training providers and communities. It showcases and celebrates the talent and diversity across a range of apprenticeship and industry sectors.

PATRONS

Dame Asha Khemka DBE

With over 30 years' experience in further education and skills and former CEO of West Nottinghamshire College Group, Dame Asha is a prominent and respected figure within the sector sitting on numerous Boards and is the Skills Lead for the Midlands Engine for Growth as well as holding the position of Chair of the Skills Group.

Dame Asha is founding Chair of the former AoC India she spearheaded education developments between the UK and India, overseeing numerous partnerships and establishing alliances with key Indian stakeholders. In 2015 she was instrumental in securing funding for UK colleges to work with 12 Indian Polytechnics supporting the development of Community Colleges. She has accompanied several Ministerial delegations to India joining the Prime Minister, Deputy Prime Minister and Education Ministers in recent missions.

Lord Rami Ranger CBE

Lord Rami Ranger is a well-known and highly successful entrepreneur in the UK. He started his business life with £2 and an old type writer in a shed back in 1987. He felt very humbled and privileged to be heading a business with an annual turnover of in excess of £200 million and operating in 130 countries.

He came to the UK in 1971 to study law expecting the 'streets to be paved with gold', but when he found that he could not take forward his ambition, he took the only job available which was cleaning cars. His philosophy with that job like everything else he has done was to make sure he did it well in order to 'stand out from the rest.' His view is if you cannot do a small job well then how can you be trusted with a big one? Other jobs followed including working for Kentucky Fried Chicken, the electrical retailer Dixons and running a family convenience store, off-licence and Post Office. But the big change for him came in 1987.

He started his business which has since gone from strength to strength and now has been awarded five consecutive Queen's Awards for Enterprise as well as one for Exporting. Dr Rami Ranger is still fortunate enough to work hard and with no plans to retire. He now spends more time on community-based work including a leading role with the Princes Trust helping young people. He believes that Apprenticeships offer a great opportunity for people to earn and learn and there is a huge job to be done 'educating' young people, their parents and employers about the value of apprentices.

JUDGES

OLGA BOTTOMLEY (CHAIR OF JUDGING PANEL)

Olga is Managing Director of Straight4ward Solutions. ENDORSEMENTS

SIR MARTIN SORRELL - EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN OF S4 CAPITAL

Diversity and inclusion are fundamental to stimulate the growth of any successful company. Apprenticeships are a very valuable entry point for fresh, young, diverse talent and a good tool for improving social mobility. Apprenticeships can create career paths, as we saw with the WPP Fellowship programme, and strengthen the talent pipeline from Apprentice to the top levels of any company. These (Asian Apprenticeship Awards) identify strong role models in the industry and showcase great talent from all backgrounds. Congratulations to all the finalists and winners.

JAMES CAAN - FOUNDER OF RECRUITMENT GUIDE

Apprenticeships have become more and more important to our economy. The need to rapidly up-skill the next generation of industry leaders has proven to be a success delivering not only for the apprentices but for businesses and the economy. In the Asian Community sadly, there is a stigma attached to apprenticeships and it is seen as something lesser than a degree or getting into employment straight away.

CHARLIE MULLINS - CEO OF PIMLICO PLUMBERS

I'm honoured to support the Asian Apprenticeship Awards. I started off my career as an Apprentice and know the real value they can bring. A good quality apprenticeship can change lives. We do need more role models from diverse backgrounds to promote apprenticeships and these awards are a perfect opportunity to do so.

ANNE MILTON - FORMER MINISTER OF STATE FOR SKILLS & APPRENTICESHIPS

I was delighted to read about the continued success of the Asian Apprenticeship Awards since their launch in 2016, and to read about the background to the project and your achievements in 2017. I applaud your commitment to recognising, highlighting and celebrating apprenticeship successes, and in addressing the challenge of encouraging British Asian communities to participate in apprenticeship schemes. Celebrating the best of British Asian apprentices, as well as their employers and trainers, will inspire others and raise the profile of apprenticeships, which in turn will help achieve an increase in Black, Asian and ethnic minority apprentices.

HELEN GRANT MP - FORMER CHAIR OF THE APPRENTICESHIP DIVERSITY CHAMPIONS NETWORK

The Asian Apprenticeship Awards are about giving recognition to top employers, and shining a light on those who are delivering exceptional programmes. The Apprenticeship Diversity Champions Network is about doing just that. The ADCN is a Network of employers who are going above and beyond to make positive changes for apprenticeship diversity amongst employers and encourages more people from underrepresented groups, including those with disabilities, women and members of the black, Asian and minority ethnic (BAME) communities, to consider apprenticeships.

CAROLYN FAIRBAIRN - DIRECTOR GENERAL OF CBI

The Asian Apprenticeship Awards, now in their fourth year, are a great way to celebrate the talent and diversity of learners in our country. With diversity increasingly seen as a key driver of high performance in businesses, it is vitally important that the great careers that apprenticeships offer are available to every community and seen as important. The awards help us to celebrate success and build the reputation of apprenticeships as a fantastic option for any young person.

RT HON JUSTINE GREENING MP - FORMER SECRETARY OF STATE FOR EDUCATION

I was delighted to learn about the awards – it is great that you are bringing together BME Asian apprentices, businesses and providers to celebrate their successes.

ANDY STREET - METRO MAYOR FOR WEST MIDLANDS

We are keen to increase the number of high-quality apprenticeships available across the West Midlands and ensure that all our communities are aware of, and have access to, the fantastic opportunities available. Across the West Midlands, we want more degree and higher level apprenticeships and more apprenticeships in key growth sectors like engineering, design and digital.

DR. NEIL BENTLEY - GOCKMANN OBE - CEO OF WORLDSKILLS UK

I strongly believe that more needs to be done to showcase the fantastic opportunities that an apprenticeship can offer all young people, and that is why I am excited to be working with the Asian Apprenticeship Awards. I hope that by showcasing the Apprentice of the Year at The Skills Show, we can unravel some of the myths that exist and inspire more young people, from all backgrounds, to consider an apprenticeship as a route to a successful and rewarding career.

LORD DIGBY JONES - INTERNATIONAL BUSINESSMAN & CROSS BENCH PEER AT THE HOUSE OF LORDS

These Awards are excellent! Young people with self-esteem, self-respect and a ticket they know will set them on a path of realisation of aspiration, will be the immediate beneficiaries of the aura and esteem these Awards give the Asian Community, but our country and our city will be the long-term beneficiary and that is a wonderful thing.

STEPHEN MARTIN - FORMER DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE INSTITUTE OF DIRECTORS

Apprenticeships offer an invaluable path to a successful career. The Asian Apprenticeship Awards are an acknowledgement of the success and achievement of apprentices and a celebration of the diversity of the UK workforce. It is crucial to the future success of our economy that we remain open to every community and provide high-quality training opportunities for people of all backgrounds. The learners who have benefited from apprenticeship training and whose achievements are being recognised by these awards are a marker for the value of vocational training and the talent within the BAME community.

NEIL CARBERRY - CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF RECRUITMENT & EMPLOYMENT CONFEDERATION

For too long, generally as well as in British Asian communities, technical learning delivered through an Apprenticeship has been seen as the second choice. Yet we know now that many Apprenticeships deliver better career outcomes than degrees from the best universities. And I am always impressed by how many former apprentices make up the leadership groups of some of the UK's largest firms. Apprenticeships have the added bonus of being much greater engines of social mobility than other forms of learning – often taking young people at 16 or 18 from less well-off backgrounds and propelling them into a career with a sense of purpose, and a good income. For all these reasons, it is vital we celebrate the success stories, inspire firms to do more and sell Apprenticeships to more young people. In a short period of time, the Asian Apprenticeship Awards have done all three, with increasing effects.

CASE STUDIES

LIFE STORIES

What's it really like to be an apprentice?
We asked a few people to share their experiences.

AHMED MUNSHI
BAE SYSTEMS

A project management apprentice and student mentor who defied his family's wish for him to go to university has been crowned Apprentice of the Year at the Asian Apprenticeship Awards.

Ahmed Munshi of BAE Systems, who has mentored nine school and college students alongside his work and studies, took home the top accolade at the award ceremony in Birmingham.

Although his family hoped he would follow the traditional route to university, Ahmed was convinced a higher apprenticeship would be the perfect combination of academia and work.

Ahmed says, "The apprenticeship has enabled me to improve my personal qualities, to be a more well-rounded individual, not simply from an occupation perspective. BAE Systems has helped me to become socially conscious, participating in activities that go beyond my day-to-day work life."

"I strongly believe a person should wake up in the morning with two feet on the ground and feel that they are making a difference to someone's life."

Olga Bottomley, Head Judge, said Ahmed was chosen as the winner because he had "embraced working life and his studies" and had an "incredibly strong social responsibility ethic".

"He had to persuade his family of the wisdom of applying for an apprenticeship, and since that point, he has become a fantastic ambassador for his company and apprenticeships more widely."

"Ahmed works closely with his local mosque and he mentors other young people. He is truly someone to watch as his career develops."

JTL SUCCESS AT ASIAN APPRENTICESHIP AWARDS 2018

11th December 2018 News 585 Views

Leading apprenticeship training organisation JTL had a highly successful night at the recent Asian Apprenticeship Awards held at the imposing Edgbaston Cricket Ground, the home of Warwickshire County Cricket Club.

The organisation was awarded the Learning Provider of the Year Award for 2018 and one of its apprentices – Shabeeb Mohammed from Rotherham – won Apprentice of the Year in the Construction sector. Shabeeb, a plumbing apprentice, works for Fortem in Yorkshire.

JTL has been highly influential in increasing the numbers of apprentices joining the electrical and heating and plumbing industries from the black, Asian and minority ethnic sectors. For a number of years, it has been running an Ambassador programme to encourage apprentices from under represented communities to enter the apprenticeship field, with the more than thirty young ambassadors participating in activities to encourage others from their communities to consider applying for apprenticeships through JTL into the building services sector.

Step up on to the ladder today with Apprenticeships and Business to help Greater Birmingham prosper!

After great success with the Ladder for the Black Country and Ladder for Staffordshire this superb initiative has now expanded into Greater Birmingham.

The wonderful aspect of this initiative is that it not only encourages businesses to take on new employees who are just starting their career, it's also an investment into their future and the future of the area.

Birmingham companies now have an opportunity to step up and help give local people the opportunity to prosper in their organisations.

A £1000 incentive payment is available for employers who take on an apprentice aged 16-18, or an apprentice aged 19-24 who has been in care or has Local Authority Education, Health and Care Plan.

Employers with fewer than 50 staff may be able to have training for an apprentice aged 16-18 (or an apprentice aged 19-24 who meets the conditions above) fully funded by government funding, with no employer contribution. For more information:
